The Evergreen rapid transit line connects Coquitlam to Vancouver, and includes 11 km of guideway with seven new stations. The project was commissioned under a design-build-finance contract with a consortium led by SNC Lavalin. DIALOG was contracted to lead the design and construction documentation of the Lougheed and Lafarge Lake-Douglas elevated stations. The team developed a concept plan that addressed the core functional requirements, which encompassed optimizing the transit operations and passenger experience and delivering functional yet inviting transit stations.
