An under-utilized lower level space in the iconic TELUS Garden building in downtown Vancouver was chosen as the home of Innovative Fitness's newest gym location. The design team was challenged with satisfying both TELUS and Innovative Fitness' requirements and expectations for this new facility. The clients shared a desire to create a flagship gym while merging both of their brands and threading in a progressive flare for the new street-level facility. Both clients wanted a space that made a bold statement and provided a strong sense of brand, status, and adrenaline using unique design form.
